

Adjunct Trainer Application

The Sexual Health Educator (SHE) Training Program is designed for educators in school, community, and clinical settings who want to build their knowledge and capacity in sexual health and sexuality education. Participants who complete six required modules and at least five elective modules will receive a SHE Training Program certificate of completion.

This training program was created by sexual health educators, trainers, and experts from the California Department of Public Health (CDPH) Office of Sexually Transmitted Infections (STIs) and Hepatitis C Virus (HCV), Essential Access Health, the California Department of Education (CDE), and other partner organizations throughout California.

The modules that make up the SHE Training Program can be found at the program website: <https://californiaptc.com/sexual-health-educator-training-program/>. Most modules, whether developed internally, or by external organizations, are available as either asynchronous virtual trainings or recorded webinars. Some modules are only available as live trainings, provided either in-person or over Zoom. This is where the role of the Adjunct Trainer comes in.

The modules Adjunct Trainers can train on include, but are not limited to, the following:

- STI/HIV Review: Workshop for Educators Who Work with Youth
- California Healthy Youth Act: Comprehensive Sexual Health and HIV Prevention Education Requirements
- Minor Consent and Confidentiality for Sexual Health Services in California: A Training for Educators
- Contraceptive Methods
- Teaching Sexual Health Education: Building Comfort and Capacity
- Teaching Sexual Health Education: Facilitating Difficult Questions in the Classroom

Role of the Adjunct Trainer

The CDPH Office of STIs and HCV relies on professional colleagues who volunteer to become Adjunct Trainers to help support training needs across California. Trainers are provided with up-to-date information on sexual health topics and receive capacity building and technical assistance around training needs. They are provided with current, medically accurate, and engaging training materials developed by experts in the field of sexual health. Trainers can advertise local trainings as a partnership with the CDPH Office of STIs and HCV, which adds credibility to the training and may incentivize participants from a variety of educational and work settings.

Requirements to become an Adjunct Trainer:

- Enroll in and complete the SHE Training Program *certificate of completion by completing the six required modules and at least five elective modules.
- Complete and submit your SHE Adjunct Trainer Application with your certificate of completion to STDHealthEd@cdph.ca.gov.
- Adjunct Trainers are responsible for scheduling and organizing at least one training per year in their local area or in a neighboring county. The Adjunct Trainer will receive technical assistance to support familiarity with content and will co-train with Adjunct Trainers or SHE Training Program staff when possible.
- Acceptance to become an active Adjunct Trainer is dependent on Office of STIs and HCV staff feedback and evaluation. Adjunct Trainers are expected to meet the same standard of quality to which the CDPH trainers are held to when conducting training courses. If at any point SHE Training Program staff determine a participant cannot meet the program requirements or standard of training, the participant will be relieved of any further training commitments.
- Get supervisor approval (see page 6).

New Adjunct Trainers will be provided with support from the Office of STIs and HCV Health Promotion and Communications Unit including training materials, logistical support, and connection to other trainers.

The Health Promotion and Communications Unit is available to provide additional support for Adjunct Trainers as needed. You can email specific questions or concerns to STDHealthEd@cdph.ca.gov.
